Posterior cruciate ligament injuries in grade III tibial plateau fractures. The purpose of this study is to determine the incidence of posterior cruciate ligament (PCL) injuries in association with tibial plateau fractures and to compare the results of surgery with nonoperative management. A retrospective review of 67 consecutive patients with tibial plateau fractures treated operatively and nonoperatively was performed. The rate of PCL injury was determined. The results of the patients who underwent surgery were then compared to those in the group that did not undergo surgery. There were 10 cases of grade I, 40 cases of grade II, and 17 cases of grade III tibial plateau fractures. Forty-six fractures were treated nonoperatively and 21 fractures were treated operatively. There were two PCL injuries in the nonoperative treatment group and none in the operatively treated group (pO'Hara's Line (journal) c6a93da74d
